3's COMPANY AT EASTSIDE DOJO

BY RP TAYLOR

“3's company? Hmm...” Wait for it.

As you can see in the kanji, or Japanese character, it is a combination of one, 一 (ichi), and two, 二 (ni). It represents creation, time (past, present, and future), and the three elements of body, mind and spirit. When pronounced as a counting number, 3 can also be mitsu. This sounds like the word 蜜 (mitsu), meaning honey. Honey can be a metaphor for prosperity.

CONTINUED

I know, in the United States three is often considered to be a crowd. Not true this time. For Eastside, it definitely represents prosperity, inside and out. One Saturday in February, instead of a crowd, three made for good company. That day, three judoka were promoted to black belt. Woohoo!!! For the first time in the history of the club, three judoka were promoted to first degree black belt (shodan) at the same time.

Congratulations Bruno Goletto, Hieuy Nguyen, and Josh Perry

CONGRATULATIONS!!!
Eastside Dojo Team won 3rd place!

Continuing with the theme of three, we have to highlight that the Eastside Dojo Team winning 3rd place at the Lonestar Classic Tournament. Why celebrate winning 3rd place? Because it is an awesome position to be in to celebrate the growth of the individuals on the team, as well as evaluate where everyone can get better.

"It is not important to be better than someone else, but to be better than yesterday"
